FIRST AMENDED COMPLAINT

In order to address chronic housing insecurity among its residents, New York offers government-subsidized housing vouchers that allow low-income families to secure housing in the private rental market. It is illegal in New York City for landlords and brokers to reject rental applicants for using such a housing voucher, but discrimination against these voucher-holders is rampant. As a result, thousands of New Yorkers with vouchers are unable to leave overcrowded homeless shelters, substandard housing, and high-poverty neighborhoods, even though their housing vouchers provide them the financial means, and the legal right, to do so.

Defendants in this action are landlords and brokers who blatantly refused to rent apartments to New Yorkers with vouchers. They did so in violation of local, state, and federal law, even as New York City faces a housing crisis and the ravages of a global pandemic. Indeed, at the time this civil action was commenced, 56,000 individuals slept each night in the City's homeless shelter system, and well over 100,000 children lived in shelters or "doubled up" in apartments with family or friends. Since March 2020, the COVID-19 pandemic has made matters much worse: nearly half of all New Yorkers, including nearly 60 percent of all low-wage workers, lost employment income since the virus arrived in New York. As many as one-quarter of New Yorkers have been unable to make rent, and the City is bracing for a wave of evictions as the temporary state and federal moratoria on evictions end. Moreover, because New York City's voucher-holders are overwhelmingly Black and Hispanic and disproportionately likely to have a disability, landlords and brokers' voucher bans result in a substantially greater burden on these populations.

Defendants' refusal to accept Housing Choice Vouchers, and Defendants' statements in connection with such refusals, constitute unlawful race and disability discrimination under the Fair Housing Act ("FHA"), 42 U.S.C. § 3601 et seq. and unlawful source of income discrimination under the New York City Human Rights Law ("NYCHRL"), New York City Administrative Code § 8-107 et. seq., and the New York State Human Rights Law ("NYSHRL"), New York Consolidated Laws Service, Executive Law § 290 et. seq. Defendants' unlawful policies and practices against renting to New Yorkers with housing vouchers prevents poor New Yorkers of color and disabled New Yorkers in need from effectively using their housing vouchers, worsening housing segregation and exacerbating burdens on low-income and disabled New Yorkers.

The resulting impact of Defendants' refusal to accept Housing Choice Vouchers and Defendants' statements in connection with such refusals, is a staggering reduction in the available inventory of safe and affordable housing available to some of the most vulnerable residents of New York City.

PARTIES

4. Housing Rights Initiative. HRI is a national nonprofit housing watchdog group headquartered in New York, NY. HRI is dedicated to promoting fair and lawful housing practices. Since its founding, a core part of HRI's mission has been preserving affordable housing in New York City and assisting tenants in securing and maintaining access to affordably priced housing. It has historically done this by counseling and organizing tenants in New York City about their rights to affordable housing and transparency by landlords, such as rights guaranteed by rent-stabilization laws, tax reporting requirements and other laws. HRI further assists these tenants by referring them to legal counsel who advise and assist tenants to bring legal actions against landlords who seek to evade these affordable housing laws and reporting requirements. Through HRI's counseling, organizing and referral efforts, it has successfully and substantially increased the inventory of affordably-priced housing in the City. These gains, however, have been jeopardized and offset by the epidemic of source of income discrimination uncovered by HRI's investigation, which has effectively placed thousands of affordable units effectively off limits to voucher-holding tenants. HRI expended staff time and other resources to investigate and respond to Defendants' discriminatory rental practices, which has led to an increased demand and need for its organizing, counseling and referral services, while simultaneously diverting resources away from these activities in order to address the rampant source of income discrimination that is epidemic in New York City. Additionally, Defendants' discriminatory rental practices frustrated HRI's mission to preserve and maintain affordable housing in New York City by making apartments unavailable to renters using Housing Choice Vouchers.

BACKGROUND

83. The Housing Choice Voucher Program (the “Voucher Program”), a successor to the Section 8 Rental Voucher or Rental Certificate Program, is a federally funded housing subsidy program designed to allow low-income families to obtain safe, decent, and affordable housing. Currently assisting more than two-million American families, including over 127,500 families in New York City, the Voucher Program is the largest rental-assistance program administered by the U.S. Department of Housing and Urban Development (“HUD”). In New York City, the designated programs administering the Voucher Program are the New York City Housing Authority (“NYCHA”), the New York City Housing Preservation and Development (“HPD”), and New York State Homes and Community Renewal (“NYSHCR”).

84. Housing Choice Vouchers are tenant-based subsidies that are not linked to any particular housing complex, building, or unit, but rather enable families with a Housing Choice Voucher to rent housing in the private market, at market rates, provided the rent does not exceed the Program’s payment standards (i.e. limits on the monthly rent that are set by NYCHA, NYSHCR and HPD) and a percentage of the voucher-holder's income. The Voucher Program thus removes some of the barriers that would otherwise restrict low-income families from the opportunity to obtain rental housing outside of areas of concentrated poverty, allowing families to move to neighborhoods with rich access to public transportation, grocery stores, green spaces, well-performing schools, and cultural enrichment. Obtaining a voucher can provide a homeless or low-income New Yorker with a direct path to housing and enable integration in mixed-income neighborhoods. The success of the voucher program depends in large part on the ability of renters to obtain housing in integrated neighborhoods, as well as the participation of landlords on the private housing market.

85. Housing Choice Vouchers are designed, among other things, to allow very low-income families to rent safe, decent, and affordable privately-owned housing. Vouchers are especially important in high-cost jurisdictions like New York City, where rent burdens on low-income families are particularly severe.

86. Vouchers are also time-limited, and can generally only be used for a short period after they are issued. Applicants for Section 8 vouchers are placed on years-long waiting lists but only have 120 days to find an apartment once they finally receive a voucher unless they are able to obtain an extension on their voucher expiration date.

87. As a result of widespread voucher discrimination, voucher holders must frequently accept subpar housing in segregated neighborhoods, or risk losing their voucher altogether.

88. The voucher issued to each family subsidizes rent in a privately owned rental housing unit of the voucher holder's choice, subject to minimum standards of health and safety.

89. As part of their mission to help disabled Americans secure housing, NYCHA, HPD and NYSHCR assign a high proportion of available Housing Choice Vouchers to individuals with disabilities.

90. New York City residents with a Housing Choice Voucher are disproportionately likely to have a disability compared to New York City residents without vouchers. About 28% of New York City residents who live in Housing Choice Voucher households have a disability.<sup>1</sup> By comparison, 9.8% of New York City residents in non-Housing Choice Voucher households have a disability.<sup>2</sup>

91. New York City residents with disabilities are disproportionately served by the Housing Choice Voucher program in part because some Housing Choice Vouchers are designed to serve individuals with disabilities, including through the Non-Elderly Disabled Voucher program.

92. In addition to the federally-funded Housing Choice Voucher program, New York State and New York City administer voucher programs specifically allocated for individuals with high health costs and disabilities, including the HIV/AIDS Services Administration (HASA) voucher, which serves more than 18,000 individuals living with AIDS or HIV illness, and the Olmstead Housing Subsidy (OHS) which serves high-need Medicaid beneficiaries.

93. New Yorkers with a Housing Choice Voucher are disproportionately likely to be Black or Hispanic compared to New Yorkers without vouchers. About 82% of New York City residents with Housing Choice Vouchers are Black or Hispanic, compared with 50% of New York City residents without vouchers who are Black or Hispanic.

94. The demographic composition of voucher-holders is well understood among real estate companies, including brokers and landlords, who perceive voucher holders to be disproportionately Black or Hispanic and lower-income.

95. One purpose of the Housing Choice Voucher Program is to encourage neighborhood integration by allowing low-income and minority voucher-holders to freely move to higher-income and majority-white neighborhoods.

96. Despite the goals of the Program of reducing concentrated poverty and mitigating housing segregation, Housing Choice Voucher holders in New York City are mainly concentrated in high-poverty and segregated neighborhoods. Nearly 40% of voucher-holders in the New York City metropolitan area live in high-poverty neighborhoods, while just 14% of voucher-holders live in low-poverty neighborhoods. Additionally, 79% of voucher-holders of color with children live in minority-concentrated areas, reflecting even greater rates of residential segregation than other low-income renters of color.<sup>3</sup>

97. The concentration of voucher-holders in high-poverty and racially segregated neighborhoods is due, in large part, to rampant discrimination against voucher-holders among New York City's landlords and brokers.

98. Because of discrimination against voucher holders, renters in New York City frequently spend months or years living in homeless shelters or on the street as they search for a landlord who will accept their voucher, even though they have the ability to cover the cost of an apartment. By one estimate, 11,000 people are living in shelters in New York City despite having housing vouchers because they are unable to secure an apartment. Many more are relegated to high-poverty and segregated neighborhoods.

99. Voucher holders frequently do not have the means or the ability to investigate and report rejections. Participating in investigations can be time-consuming and exhausting for these low-income New Yorkers, whose first priority is securing housing. Many renters do not know their rights and are unaware they are being discriminated against.

100. The FHA prohibits discriminatory policies that make housing unavailable to individuals because of disability, race, or national origin, including policies that result in a disparate impact based on disability, race or national origin. 42 U.S.C. § 3604(f), 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a), 24 C.F.R. § 100.500.

101. In order to protect low-income New Yorkers from being discriminated against because of their poverty, race or disability, and to assist them in effectively utilizing the Housing Choice Voucher program, the NYCHRL and the NYSHRL require that residential rental properties be made available to prospective tenants irrespective of their source of income, and expressly provide that Housing Choice Vouchers are a source of income. It is unlawful under the NYCHRL and the NYSHRL for Defendants to discriminate based on source of income, including where that source of income is a Housing Choice Voucher. New York City, N.Y., Code § 8-102, 8-107, N.Y. Exec. Law § 292, 296.

FACTUAL ALLEGATIONS

103. The Subject Properties are residential real estate properties that are offered for rent in New York City. The Subject Properties offer studio and one-bedroom apartments with various amenities.

104. The Subject Properties are located in various boroughs and neighborhoods in New York City. In Manhattan, the Subject Properties are located in the neighborhoods of the Upper West Side, Harlem, Upper East Side, Washington Heights, Lower East Side, Midtown, Hamilton Heights and Carnegie Hill. 106. As real estate brokers and/or owners or operators of residential real estate, Defendants are required to comply with anti-discrimination laws under the FHA, the NYSHRL, and the NYCHRL.

107. Defendants, their employees and/or their agents stated to HRI's testers that Defendants would not accept Housing Choice Vouchers as a source of payment for rent at the Subject Properties. Defendants' acts, policies, and practices constitute impermissible discrimination because of disability and race on the basis of disparate impact, as well as source of income discrimination.

B. Defendants' Discriminatory Policies and Practices

108. In 2017, HRI began hearing from community partners and attorneys at legal services organizations about the struggles that many individuals and families face in being unable to locate rental properties that would accept their vouchers, and that this problem had become an insurmountable barrier to safe and affordable housing for many members of the New York City community. As a result of this information, HRI began an investigation of New York City rental housing to determine the existence and of scope of discrimination against Housing Choice Voucher holders in New York City.

109. HRI investigates housing discrimination through a variety of means, including civil rights testing. Civil rights testers are persons who query housing providers to test the housing providers' compliance with applicable fair housing laws.

110. During these investigations, HRI conducted tests to inquire about the practices and policies of brokers and landlords throughout New York City. Through these tests, HRI discovered rampant source of income discrimination by brokers and landlords throughout New York City. Indeed, in many instances, their investigation revealed a policy or practice of refusing to accept vouchers, which prompted HRI to take steps to address such violations of the law.

111. When a real estate broker posts a listing for an apartment unit, New York law generally requires the broker to obtain authorization from the owner of the property. According to the New York Comp. Codes Rules & Regulations, "[n]o property shall be advertised unless the real estate broker has obtained authorization for such advertisement from the owner of the property." tit. 19 § 175.25(b)(2)(i). Until November 2020, brokers who did not obtain authorization from the property owner to advertise the unit were required to receive permission from the listing broker and “prominently display” a disclaimer stating, “This advertisement does not suggest that the broker has a listing in this property or properties or that any property is currently available.” New York Comp. Codes Rules & Regulations tit. 19 § 175.25(d)(6).

158. As alleged herein, the refusals to accept vouchers were pervasive and egregious, ranging from flat-out refusals to denigrating remarks about the worthiness of voucher holders as tenants.

159. Upon information and belief, and based on the statements Defendants and their representatives made to HRI testers during the calls described above, Defendants have policies or practices of refusing to accept Housing Choice Vouchers at the Subject Properties, which Defendants are the brokers for, own, or manage.

160. By their acts, policies, and practices, Defendants refuse to rent to individuals who intend to use Housing Choice Vouchers at their rental properties. In doing so, Defendants unlawfully discriminate against renters in New York City based on their source of income.

161. Because vouchers are allocated disproportionately to Black and Hispanic New York City residents and New York City residents with disabilities, this form of source-of-income discrimination disproportionately and adversely impacts prospective Black and Hispanic tenants as well as those with disabilities.

162. Upon information and belief, Defendants and/or their owners, subsidiaries, and affiliates designed, participated in, supervised, controlled, and/or approved the discriminatory policy or practice the representative or representatives expressed on the phone calls and/or in the text messages described above. As a result, each of the Defendants is liable for the unlawful conduct described herein.

163. Defendants' unlawful acts as described above were, and are, intentional and willful, and have been, and are, implemented with callous and reckless disregard for the statutorily protected rights of renters who intend to use Housing Choice Vouchers as a source of income to help pay for the rent.

C. Defendants' "No Vouchers" Policy Constitutes Unlawful Discrimination against Disabled New Yorkers on the Basis of Disparate Impact

164. Facially neutral housing practices that have a disparate impact on the basis of disability or race are prohibited by the Fair Housing Act unless they are necessary to achieve a legitimate business purpose that cannot be satisfied through a less discriminatory alternative practice. Defendants' policy of automatically denying housing to any person with a voucher is not only illegal under New York City and State law, it also has a disparate impact on the basis of both disability and race.

165. A strong link exists between the Housing Choice Voucher population and the disabled population, such that a policy that adversely affects voucher holders will likewise have a significant disproportionate effect on New York City's disabled population. A large number of disabled New Yorkers rely on Housing Choice Vouchers to obtain housing. In addition to the tens of thousands of New Yorkers who are able to obtain the scarce vouchers in programs set aside solely for individuals in New York City with disabilities, including HASA, OHM and others — all of whom would also likely be barred from housing in Defendants' properties — there are approximately 80,500 disabled New York City residents who use Section 8 Housing Choice Vouchers to obtain housing, or, 9.2% of New York City's entire disabled population. By comparison, just 2.8% of New York City's non-disabled population uses a Section 8 Housing Choice Voucher.

166. By denying all New Yorkers with Housing Choice Vouchers the opportunity to apply for and obtain housing in their buildings, each Defendant's policy prevents 9.2% of New York City's disabled population from applying for or obtaining housing in Defendants' buildings, while preventing just 2.8% of New York City's non-disabled population from applying for or obtaining housing in their buildings. Disabled New York City residents are 3.3 times more likely than non-disabled New York City residents to be adversely affected by Defendants' policies.

167. Viewed from another perspective, any single voucher-holder is much more likely to be disabled than an individual in the general population. Some 28% of the New York City residents who use Housing Choice Vouchers to pay for housing have a disability. By comparison, just 9.8% of New York City's non-voucher holders has a disability. A voucher-holder is 2.9 times more likely to be disabled than a non-voucher holder.

168. Overall, Defendants' policies affect disabled New York City residents in a significantly disproportionate way. As a result of Defendants' no-voucher policies, disabled

New York City residents are significantly more likely than non-disabled New York City residents to be barred from Defendants' properties.

D. Defendants' "No Vouchers" Policy Constitutes Unlawful Discrimination against Black and Hispanic New Yorkers on the Basis of Disparate Impact

169. The disparate impact of Defendants' policy on Black and Hispanic New Yorkers is similarly severe. More than 80% of New York City's voucher-holders are Black or Hispanic and depend on a Housing Choice Voucher to pay for housing. About 35% of voucher-holder heads-of-households are Black, and 47% heads-of-households are Hispanic. Assuming that overall household racial composition approximates the race of heads-of-households, about 100,600 Black New York City residents, or 5.5% of all Black New Yorkers, rely on a Housing Choice Voucher for housing, and 135,140 Hispanic New York City residents, or 5.5% of all Hispanic New Yorkers, rely on a Housing Choice Voucher for housing. By comparison, just 46,006 white New York City residents, or 1.7% of all white New York City residents, use a Housing Choice Voucher to obtain housing.

170. Because there is a strong link between the Housing Choice Voucher population and the Black and Hispanic population, a policy that adversely affects voucher holders will likewise have a significant disproportionate effect on New York City's Black and Hispanic population. Defendants' ban on Housing Choice Vouchers, by denying all New Yorkers with vouchers the opportunity to apply for and obtain housing in their buildings, prevents 5.5% of all Black New York City residents from securing housing in Defendants' buildings, and 5.5% of all Hispanic New York City residents from securing housing, while only preventing 1.7% of white New Yorkers from obtaining housing. Overall, Black and Hispanic New York City residents are 3.2 times more likely than white New York City residents to be adversely affected by Defendant's policy.

171. Understood differently, voucher-holders are much more likely to be Black or Hispanic than non-voucher holders in New York. Some 35% of New York City's voucher-holders are Black, and 47% are Hispanic, or a total of 82% of the City's voucher-holding population is Black or Hispanic. By comparison, just 21% of New York City's general, non-voucher population is Black, 29% New York City's, non-voucher population is Hispanic, for a total of 50% of the general population is Black or Hispanic. Voucher-holders are thus 1.6 times more likely to be Black or Hispanic than non-voucher holders.

172. Conversely, voucher-holders are much less likely to be white than non-voucher holders. Just 16% of New York City voucher-holders are white, while 32% of the general population in New York City is white.

173. Overall, Defendants' policies affect Black and Hispanic New York City residents in a significantly disproportionate way. As a result of Defendants' no-voucher policies, Black and Hispanic New York City residents are significantly more likely than white New York City residents to be barred from Defendants' properties.

E. Effect of Defendants' Discriminatory Policy

174. Because of voucher bans like those enforced by Defendants, it is extremely difficult for families with Housing Choice Vouchers to obtain housing. As New Yorkers with vouchers are well aware, according to HUD, "[i]t takes a lot of work to find housing with a voucher. The search requires sifting through numerous advertisements, making numerous calls, and facing frequent rejection."<sup>4</sup> Low-income New Yorkers with vouchers, predominantly Black or Hispanic, and disproportionately likely to have disabilities, are frequently forced to stay in homeless shelters for years,<sup>5</sup> despite possessing the means to pay for integrated housing on the open market. The challenges are more acute in New York City than nearly any other jurisdiction.<sup>6</sup>

175. Defendants' discriminatory policies contribute to racial and socioeconomic segregation in New York City.

176. Defendants' discriminatory policies result in a substantial decrease in the inventory of safe and affordable housing available to low income tenants.

177. Defendants' properties are located in neighborhoods that are disproportionately white and disproportionately wealthy compared to typical voucher holders. The average median income in the neighborhoods where Defendants' properties are located, based on community district, is $93,200. The average racial makeup in Defendants' neighborhoods is 51% white, 9% Black, and 19% Hispanic.

178. By comparison, the average income of a Section 8 voucher holder in New York City, including government assistance, is about $18,700. About 35% of Section 8 voucher holders are Black and 47% are Hispanic, while just 16% are white.

179. The typical resident in Defendants' neighborhoods is thus much wealthier and much more likely to be white than a typical voucher holder.

180. Voucher holders who are unable to obtain housing in Defendants' neighborhoods as a result of Defendants' discriminatory policy instead obtain housing in poorer, disproportionately minority neighborhoods, if they are able to find housing at all.

<sup>6</sup> U.S. Dep't of Housing and Urban Development, Study on Section 8 Voucher Success Rates (2001) (last HUD study of voucher success rates in New York, finding that only 57% of voucher-holders in New York City in the year 2000 succeeded in obtaining an apartment).

181. The effect of Defendants' policy is to worsen racial and socioeconomic segregation by imposing disproportionate burdens on non-white, low-income New Yorkers seeking to move to integrated neighborhoods, and cut off opportunities for needy families by relegating families to segregated areas of the City.

182. The result of voucher rejection is racial segregation and the high concentration of voucher-holders in high-poverty neighborhoods in New York City. The high concentration of voucher-holders in high-poverty neighborhoods undermines the purpose of the Housing Choice Voucher program: to increase mobility and opportunity, deconcentrate poverty, and diminish racial segregation.

183. Defendants' policies harm the individuals in the communities that HRI serves and rupture the fabric of New York City.

HARM TO HRI AND THE COMMUNITIES IT SERVES

184. Defendants' unlawful conduct has harmed HRI and the communities that it serves.

185. Since its founding, a core part of HRI's mission has been preserving affordable housing in New York City and assisting tenants in securing and maintaining access to affordably priced housing. It has historically done this by counseling and organizing tenants in New York City about their rights to affordable housing and transparency by landlords, such as rights guaranteed by rent-stabilization laws, tax reporting requirements and other laws. HRI further assists tenants by referring them to legal counsel who advises them of their legal options and brings legal actions against landlords who seek to evade these affordable housing laws and reporting requirements.

186. Through HRI's counseling, organizing and referral efforts, it has successfully and substantially increased the inventory of affordably-priced housing in the City when the tenants who it counsels and organizes are able to secure agreements with landlords around the City ensuring that units will be affordably priced.

187. These gains, however, have been jeopardized and offset by an epidemic of source-of-income discrimination around the City, including the discriminatory policies of the Defendants alleged herein. Beginning in 2017, HRI began hearing from its community partners that widespread source of income discrimination in New York City's housing markets threatened to worsen the affordable housing crisis by placing thousands of otherwise affordable housing off limits to low-income tenants with vouchers.

188. As a result, HRI was compelled to divert hundreds of hours of time and scarce financial resources to fully investigate and identify the extent of housing providers' unlawful source-of-income-discrimination practices through its testing program and to determine how to counteract them. HRI employed a testing program to monitor compliance with federal, state, and local civil rights laws that prohibit discrimination against members of legally protected classes—including race, disability, religion, national origin, gender, family status, and source of income, among others. When HRI found Defendants were engaged in source-of-income discrimination, it was required to divert scarce resources to address the problem through education and outreach, advocacy, training, collaboration and, if necessary, enforcement. This diversion and expenditure of resources has come in several forms as described below.

189. Because it is not only important to remedy past discrimination, but to take steps to prevent similar future discrimination from occurring, the activities used in this effort have also included outreach and education directed at affected or potentially affected populations, the public at large, enforcement agencies and the owners and employee of the entities engaged in the discriminatory activity.

190. In response to HRI's investigation, HRI was compelled to divert hundreds of hours of resources to an extensive education and outreach campaign to the affected communities in an effort to combat Defendants' discrimination. This included:

- creating and providing know-your-rights material to hundreds of schools, churches, community boards and other local partners informing them of the rights of prospective tenants and the responsibilities of landlords and brokers concerning source-of-income discrimination;
- creating and publishing website content for HRI's website about source of income discrimination;
- communicating with the New York State Division on Human Rights to discuss HRI's findings and how the State could combat these violations;
- outreach to local elected officials to discuss HRI's findings; and
- outreach directly to the Defendants to educate them about their responsibilities as landlords and brokers.

Not including the time spent investigating using testers, HRI's staff expended more than 240 hours on education and outreach.

191. Defendants' discriminatory policies and practices have diverted HRI's resources away from its organizing, counseling and referral services in order to address the rampant source of income discrimination that is epidemic in New York City. For example, during 2020 and 2021, HRI had expected to organize and counsel a sufficient number of tenants such that at least 2,000 housing units across New York City would be returned to affordability as a result of HRI's efforts. Instead, HRI was forced to spend resources combatting Defendants' source of income discrimination, causing HRI to fall approximately 50% short of its goal.

192. If HRI had not been required to divert such resources to address Defendants' discrimination, HRI would have used those resources to further its efforts to preserve and maintain affordable housing, including its counseling, organizing and referral of tenants who have been overcharged and subject to other fraudulent practices by their landlords that have resulted in unaffordable housing. This diversion has reduced the impact of HRI's affordable housing advocacy, as well as adversely impacted HRI's ability to engage in its other programmatic activities.

193. If HRI did not engage in activities to combat Defendants' source-of-income-discrimination policies and practices, HRI's successes in maintaining and preserving affordable housing in New York City would be rolled back, due to the resulting reduced inventory of affordable housing available to low-income residents of New York City caused by Defendants' source-of-income discrimination.

194. Prior to and at the time of filing this action, Defendants' wrongdoing has injured, injures, and—if left unaddressed—will continue to injure HRI by frustrating its mission to promote fair housing opportunities and preserve and maintain affordable housing in New York City, and will require HRI to continue to divert its efforts and programming to combat practices that deny housing opportunities to voucher holders, preventing HRI from continuing its other counseling, organizing and referral efforts on behalf of tenants.

195. Defendants' discriminatory policies and practices have had the effect of reducing the available inventory of safe and affordable housing around the City, leading to an increased demand and need for HRI's organizing, counseling and referral services.

FIRST CLAIM FOR RELIEF
(Fair Housing Act: 42 U.S.C. § 3604(f)(1))

196. Plaintiff restates and incorporates the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

197. The Subject Properties are units that are occupied by, or designed or intended to be occupancy as, residences by one or more families. As a result, the Subject Properties are “dwelling[s]” within the meaning of the FHA. 42 U.S.C. § 3602(b).

198. The FHA makes it unlawful to “discriminate in the sale or rental, or otherwise make unavailable or deny, a dwelling to any buyer or renter” because of disability. 42 U.S.C. § 3604(f)(1).

199. Liability may be established under the FHA “based on a practice’s discriminatory effect . . . even if the practice was not motivated by a discriminatory intent.” 24 C.F.R. § 100.500.

200. Defendants illegally discriminated against individuals with disabilities by making unavailable or denying apartments for rent because of disability, including, but not limited to, refusing to: (a) provide information about apartments available for rent; (b) show apartments available for rent; (c) consider applications from individuals using Housing Choice Vouchers.

201. Defendants’ policy or practice or refusing to accept Housing Choice Vouchers towards rent at the Subject Properties has a discriminatory effect on disabled individuals because it actually or predictably results in a disparate impact on disabled individuals. See 42 U.S.C. § 3604(f); 24 C.F.R. § 100.500(a).

202. To HRI’s knowledge, Defendants have no justification for their policy or practice of refusing access to Housing Choice Voucher holders or for their statements expressing such policy or practice. Defendant’s policy or practice is not necessary to achieve any legitimate, nondiscriminatory interest. Even if Defendants could claim such an interest, that interest could be served by another policy or practice with less discriminatory effect.

203. Defendants' intentional and willful policy and practice of refusing to accept housing vouchers has been taken in disregard for the rights of others and has had a disparate impact on individuals with disabilities.

204. As a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct, HRI has been injured by a discriminatory housing practice and is therefore an "aggrieved person," as defined by the FHA, 42 U.S.C. § 3602(i)(1).

SECOND CLAIM FOR RELIEF
(Fair Housing Act: 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a))

205. Plaintiff restates and incorporates the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

206. The Subject Properties are units that are occupied by, or designed or intended to be occupancy as, residences by one or more families. As a result, the Subject Properties are "dwelling[s]" within the meaning of the FHA. 42 U.S.C. § 3602(b).

207. The FHA makes it unlawful to refuse to rent or sell housing or refuse to negotiate for the rental of housing, or otherwise make housing unavailable because of race and/or national origin. 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a).

208. Liability may be established under the FHA "based on a practice's discriminatory effect . . . even if the practice was not motivated by a discriminatory intent." 24 C.F.R. § 100.500.

209. Defendants' act, policies, and practices constitute a refusal to rent housing or negotiate for the rental of housing because of race and/or national origin by refusing to: (a)

provide information about apartments available for rent; (b) show apartments available for rent; (c) consider applications from individuals using Housing Choice Vouchers.

210. Defendants' policy or practice or refusing to accept Housing Choice Vouchers towards rent at the Subject Properties has a discriminatory effect on African Americans and Hispanic Americans because it actually or predictably results in a disparate impact on them. See 42 U.S.C. § 3604(a); 24 C.F.R. § 100.500(a).

211. To HRI's knowledge, Defendants have no justification for their policy or practice of refusing access to Housing Choice Voucher holders or for their statements expressing such policy or practice. Defendant's policy or practice is not necessary to achieve any legitimate, nondiscriminatory interest. Even if Defendants could claim such an interest, that interest could be served by another policy or practice with less discriminatory effect.

212. Defendants' intentional and willful policy and practice of refusing to accept housing vouchers has been taken in disregard for the rights of others and has had a disparate impact on African Americans and Hispanic Americans.

213. As a result of Defendants' wrongful conduct, HRI has been injured by a discriminatory housing practice and is therefore an "aggrieved person," as defined by the FHA, 42 U.S.C. § 3602(i)(1).

THIRD CLAIM FOR RELIEF
(New York State Human Rights Law)

214. Plaintiff restates and incorporates by reference the preceding paragraphs as if fully set forth herein.

215. Defendants are brokers and/or landlords of housing accommodations and/or have the right to approve the rental accommodations located in New York State as defined by New York Consolidated Laws Service, Executive Law § 296(10) as "any building, structure, or portion thereof which is used or occupied or is intended, arranged or designed to be used or occupied, as the home, residence, or sleeping place of one or more human beings.”

216. New York Consolidated Laws Service, Executive Law § 292(32) provides that “lawful source of income” includes “any form of federal, state, or local public assistance or housing assistance including, but not limited to, section 8 vouchers.”

217. New York Consolidated Laws Service, Executive Law § 296(5)(a) provides that it shall be “an unlawful discriminatory practice for the owner, lessee, sub-lessee, assignee, or managing agent of, or other person having the right to sell, rent or lease a housing accommodation ... or any agent or employee thereof ... to refuse to sell, rent, lease or otherwise to deny to or withhold from any person or group of persons such a housing accommodation because of . . . lawful source of income.”

218. New York Consolidated Laws Service, Executive Law § 296(5)(c) provides that it shall be “an unlawful discriminatory practice for any real estate broker, real estate salesperson or employee or agent thereof ... to refuse to sell, rent or lease any housing accommodation ... to any person or group of persons because of ... lawful source of income.”

219. Defendants violated § 296(5) by adopting policies that deny or withhold apartments for rent because of source of income.

220. Defendants’ conduct was willful and intentional.

221. Plaintiff HRI is a “person” pursuant to § 292(1) and has suffered damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendants’ discriminatory conduct.

222. Accordingly, under New York Executive Law § 297(9), Plaintiff is entitled to actual damages, punitive damages, injunctive relief, and reasonable attorneys’ fees and costs.

FOURTH CLAIM FOR RELIEF

(New York City Human Rights Law: Source of Income Discrimination)

223. Plaintiff restates and incorporates by reference the preceding paragraphs as if set forth fully herein.

224. Defendants are the brokers and/or landlords of housing accommodations and/or have the right to approve the rental accommodations located in New York City as defined by Section 8-102(10) of the New York City Administrative Code to include “any building . . . which is used or occupied . . . as the home, residence, or sleeping place of one or more human beings.”

225. Section 8-102 of the New York City Administrative Code provides that “lawful source of income” includes income derived from “any form of federal, state or local public assistance or housing assistance including section 8 vouchers.”

226. Section 8-107(5)(a) of the New York City Administrative Code provides that it shall be “an unlawful discriminatory practice for the owner, lessor, lessee, sublessee, assignee, or managing agent of, or other person having the right to sell, rent or lease or approve the sale, rental or lease of a housing accommodation . . . or any agent or employee thereof . . . to refuse to sell, rent, lease, approve the sale, rental or lease or otherwise deny to or withhold from any such person or group of persons such a housing accommodation” because of any lawful source of income.

227. Section 8-107(5)(c) of the New York City Administrative Code provides that it shall be “an unlawful discriminatory practice for any real estate broker, real estate salesperson or employee or agent thereof, to refuse to sell, rent, lease any housing accommodation . . . to any person or group of persons . . . because of any lawful source of income of such persons.”

228. Defendants violated Sections 8-107(5)(a) and 8-107(5)(c) by adopting policies that deny or withhold apartments for rent because of source of income.

229. Defendants' conduct was willful and intentional.

230. Plaintiff HRI is an "aggrieved person" as defined in the New York City Administrative Code § 8-502(a), and has suffered damages as a direct and proximate result of Defendant's discriminatory conduct.

231. Accordingly, under New York City Administrative Code §§ 8-502(a) and (f), Plaintiffs are entitled to actual damages, punitive damages, injunctive relief, and reasonable attorneys' fees and costs.

PRAYER FOR RELIEF

WHEREFORE Plaintiff HRI respectfully requests that the Court:

- (b) Enter judgment declaring that Defendants' acts, policies, practices, and statements of willfully refusing to rent apartment units to Housing Choice Voucher holders have an unlawful discriminatory effect based on race and/or national origin in violation of the FHA, 42 U.S.C. §§ 3601-3631, 3604(a), 24 C.F.R. § 100-500;

- (d) Enter judgment for appropriate permanent injunctive relief, including an order that Defendants abandon their policies or practices of refusing to rent to Housing Choice Voucher holders and instead accept tenants without regard to sources of income, and such remedial actions as are necessary to ameliorate Defendants' past illegal discriminatory conduct;
- (e) Award HRI monetary damages in an amount to be determined at trial;
- (f) Award HRI reasonable attorneys' fees and costs;
- (g) Award HRI punitive damages in an amount to be determined at trial; and
